CHAIRMAN'S MESSAGE

Dear Friends, It is with great joy that I present to the society the sixth batch of MSW graduates who are all set to face the world as committed professional Social Workers. Enthusiastic and young, their contribution as professional Social Workers would surely bring in the most desired change in the lives of people of Nagaland and the Nation as a whole. The Catholic Diocese of Kohima in its mission of education have made tremendous contribution to society by establishing educational institutions, even in the most remotest and inaccessible villages in Nagaland, where even the government servants dread to go.

North East Institute of Social Sciences and Research (NEISSR), Dimapur, being the first institute of Social Work education in Nagaland under Nagaland University, was the dream of the Catholic Mission and I believe that this dream is beginning to be realized through the graduation of this sixth batch as young professionals.

Education is the strongest, most efficacious and indispensable instrument which can build a stable society. The entire ministry of Jesus Christ can be summed as a ministry of educating people with different life insights through words and deeds: stories, parables, phrases, miracles and his very life and death; hence Jesus proves himself as the sublime Divine Teacher of all times. Following the footsteps of Jesus and imbued with His values and teaching, I am hopeful that the missing factor of wisdom in society will now be made good by these graduating students by their hard work and innovative methods of working with people and thereby effecting necessary transformation in the minds, attitudes and lives of our people. I wish the interior villages and hills now be heralded with knowledge of education, peace, justice and righteousness through our students, more so by our pro-human and people friendly approach in the days to come. I am sure throughout the past years NEISSR has stood for quality education and our students are well prepared to face the realities and facets of life. The class room teaching supported by various other methods of experiential and practical learning and field exposure has made them experts on the subjects. This will make every student to feel confident in handling various issues and to form themselves as promising men and women of caliber and quality.

I also place on record the hard work and commitment of Rev. Dr. C. P. Anto and his team of committed faculty members along with the Vice-Chancellor and faculty members of Nagaland University. I wish every student God's choicest blessings and success in all their endeavors.

Yours in Christ Jesus,
Most Rev. Dr. James Thoppil
Bishop of Kohima & Chairman
NEISSR

From the Desk of Principal

Dear NEISSRians,

In recent years, education has shifted to another pattern along with the development of new scopes and shapes. Education has now taken a paradigm shift from the traditional spoon-feeding to a more independent learning and self-development prospectus. This opportunity of transcending education also is providing the scope for skilling in the formal education system which was less observed in the earlier years of mainstream education. The present education scheme does have the potential for better development of attitudes, knowledge, understanding and skills, through which personal skilling can be acquired to fit in with the present demand and need for jobs and employment. When education can suffice the purpose of demand and need, there is no doubt that desirable change and development can take effect culturally, socially, politically and economically. For this purpose of transformational education, we are in need to reorient our educational goals towards skill development and thus, to derive and materialize the best of the attitudes, knowledge and practices in the society.

I have the pleasure to present the new batch of NEISSRians (2019-21) to all the recruiters and benefactors for recruitment and felt confident that these students would definitely not disappoint any agencies who recruit them. Learning is a life process and it matters when learning and experiences are shifted to practice through confidence and leadership building, and definitely, these students have undergone transformational education in the bound of experiences and learning process.

NEISSR, having studied the contextual setting, has been offering specializations in (1) Peace and Conflict Transformation Studies (2) Youth Development and (3) Community Development, and many students were trained and educated in both the general perspective of social work and defined specializations. It is the ultimate goal that the education, training and development attained through the Masters in Social Work (MSW) courses will enable the graduate students to engage, intervene and bring forth desirable changes in the policy, politics, schemes and services equitable to all the sections of the society.

It is felt that Nagaland has been emerging as one of the fastest economically developing states in recent years and further, to enhance economic generation and growth, priorities have to be given to local level economic transactions and investments. When the local economy is embraced, promoted and enhanced, it can further develop in polity, economy and society. With this, NEISSR is striving forward to incubate capacities and skills, where these professional social workers can engage and initiate social responsibilities and services to generate employment platforms for the youth in Nagaland. This goal can be enhanced through the services of the different organizations and agencies to nurture and mentor our fresh graduates to the reality field experiences.

These scopes are further enhanced with personal skill developments integrated with the humanitarian values and principles. Apart from the regular classroom learning, regular field works, visits and research were prioritized to enrich learning and exposure. These integrated learning systems have been enhancing students to substantiate classroom learning into reality practices and thus, to intervene in social issues, disparities and inequalities.

I wish every prospective employer a happy recruitment process and our student's promising career in the days to come to.

Dr. Fr. C.P Anto

From the Desk of Placement Coordinator

It brings me great pleasure to introduce you to the highly qualified, active, and professional social work students of the North East Institute of Social Sciences and Research's batch 2019-2021.

It is an honour to introduce you to a group of committed, charismatic, and bright students who are ready and eager to assume their proper place in the various sectors available to them.

Students at NEISSR participate in a rigorous and well-rounded educational programme that involves not just theatrical discourses but also a variety of practical interactions.

The field practicum is the educational program's heart and soul, and it paradigms into practical learning. The field work programme includes elements such as orientation, concurrent fieldwork, rural camp, study tour, and block placement. Throughout the two-year programme, students are exposed to several seminars and workshops, as well as employability skills training and much more.

Being closely associated with the class of 2019-2021, I can certainly say that they're an extraordinarily talented and dedicated set of young professionals. I am convinced that our highly capable students will be able to meet your organization's needs more than adequately.

As a result, on behalf of the NEISSR Placement Cell, I would be delighted to welcome you to NEISSR for the purpose of hiring our students to work for your prestigious firm.

Asst. Professor & Placement Coordinator

ABOUT US

North East Institute of Social Sciences and Research (NEISSR) is the first institute in the state of Nagaland which is offering Master of Social Work (MSW). It is an initiative of the Diocese of Kohima. The initiative is reflection of the Diocese commitment to the cause of Social, Educational, Medical and Developmental mission of the people of its region was established in the year 1980. It had been striving through various programs since its inception has contributed to the development of social, educational, medical and cultural upliftment of the people of the state of Nagaland. Having excelled in the field of education, the diocesan administration felt the need and importance of educating the youth of Nagaland in professional field, as a result NEISSR took birth on 01.8.2014 with its first ever MSW course under Nagaland University. NEISSR, affiliated to Nagaland University, is established to impart Social Work Education to youth of North East with dual purpose of restoring peace in the region and to produce skilled and professional Social Workers.

OUR VISION

To provide intellectual, social, physical and spiritual development of the youth by igniting the minds to realize their potential to develop independent thinking and creative outlook towards life and society.

OUR MISSION

Contribute to building a new social order based on human dignity and social justice. Work with a preferential option for the vulnerable and exploited, both locally and globally. Build a cadre of young, competent professionals having a global perspective and a strong value base of compassion, personal integrity, moderation, tolerance and self-respect.

COURSE OBJECTIVE

To develop employable professionally skilled individuals to deal with both micro and macro issues of the state and contribute towards the same by bringing positive changes and planned development. Social Work is an inter-disciplinary practice based profession and a recognized academic discipline. It includes both theory along with practicum and their application in real life situation. Social Justice, Human Rights, collective Responsibility and respect for diversity are at the core aspect of social work profession. Training in Social Work focuses on research and professional interface with individuals/experts, groups and communities in need and to bring positive change in their lives.

SPECIALIZATIONS

Assessing the need of the people and the uniqueness of our region—cultural diversity the institute has been promoting specialization in Youth Development, Peace & conflict Transformation Studies and Community Development.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT (CD)

It focuses its attention on urban and rural communities and qualifies the students to take up responsibilities positions as Community Development officers.

PEACE & CONFLICT TRANSFORMATION STUDIES (PCTS)

NEISSR is the first institute in the country to introduce Peace and Conflict Transformation Studies as specialization under MSW course. It deals with one of the most pressing issues of the contemporary world. It prepares community members and students to relate through interdisciplinary approaches to prevent conflict in the communities and organizations and help them to resolve issues.

YOUTH DEVELOPMENT (YD)

The second institute in India to introduce Youth Development as specialization in MSW curriculum. It is concerned with the concept and dynamics of youth. Development Workers youth can work under both formal and non-formal settings. They are trained to be the catalysts of change that could develop youth talents and foster leadership.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

Dear Recruiters,

Warm greetings from North East Institute of Social Sciences and Research (NEISSR)!

Since its inception in 2014, NEISSR has been making consistent contribution to the society by producing socially aware and committed young social work professionals true to its mission and vision. The institute imparts quality education for social transformation focusing on three specialized area of MSW in Peace and Conflict Transformation Studies, Youth Development, and Community Development.

With immense pleasure I would like to present the unswerving 2019 batch of Community Development students. The unprecedented situation due to the pandemic adversely affected them, but I am delighted to say that students were determined and continued to adapt themselves to the changing situation undergoing rigorous curriculum inputs both in theory and in practice. Community Development specialization has been carefully developed and focuses on four broad areas keeping in view the social and environmental challenges that require alternate, sustainable and innovative solutions accustomed with the way of life of the people and SDGs listed below:

1. Rural governance and development
2. Urban governance and development
3. Environment and disaster management
4. Community health and hygiene

Today, with great pride, I can confidently say that in spite of this precarious pandemic situation our students have not only overcome the challenges but it has sharpened their analytical and problem solving abilities, networking, resource mobilizing skills, and provided them with work experience through field work practicum in government and non-government organizations through online and offline mode. With these words, I request you to look at this brochure and select these lovely, industrious, and self-motivated young social workers into your organizations.

PEACE & CONFLICT TRANSFORMATION STUDIES

Peace and Conflict Transformation Studies is an evolving field of multidisciplinary sciences and humanities. This subject is dedicated to grapple the challenges of third millennium moving from the histories of war and violence to our times creating and writing new histories of human kind living in “culture of Peace and Nonviolence” in the society and with the nature. As an emerging field of multidisciplinary studies and professionalism the course will open up huge opportunities for youths to engage in nonviolence ways of responding all kinds of conflicts at all level and contribute to making of the culture of peace and nonviolence for younger generations. Quite in contrary to the pacifist responses to war and conflicts, engaging in peace and conflict transformation works demand much more courage to withstand temptation of violence on one hand and on the other, challenges of finding creative and productive resolutions of all kinds of conflicts while ensuring peace, justice and security for all. The present generation of youth has the responsibilities to understand the culture of violence with the underlying structural and cultural processes and contributes to making of culture of peace and nonviolence.

The specialization programme offered in the final year of MSW course provides in-depth knowledge in the field of peace and conflict studies and prepares students to do independent research, design peace building programmes. It provides interdisciplinary insights into the nature of causes of conflicts, as well as efforts at building peace and restoring confidence in the institutions in conflict affected societies.

YOUTH DEVELOPMENT

As per the National youth policy 2014, youth has been defined as those between 15-29 years that comprises of 27.5% of the total population in India. As youth are the most dynamic and vibrant segment of the population, the effective participation of the youth in India will make the country stronger and sustainable.

Worldwide, the youth are the concerned segment of population in building sustainable society-economically, socially and politically. Government has a ministry of Youth Affairs and Sports which provide various schemes for youth development. Many non-governmental organizations are also working for youth welfare. However, only few educational institutes have programmes for youth in the academic field.

North East Institute of Social Sciences and Research (NEISSR) offer Youth Development as one of the specialization in the institute's academic programme. MSW students with specialization in Youth Development are sensitive towards youth issues, knowledge of youth empowerment and skills in dealing with youth using the right approaches and strategies.

I believe that our 12 students from 2019-2021 batch are sincere, honest and passionate towards lifting the vulnerable and marginalized people in our society. I wish them very best in associating with developmental organizations and carrying out their knowledge and skills independently.
